

THE ULTIMATE SPA TREATMENT: DIAMONDS AND CAVIAR FOR YOUR FACE

Beauty News

Chopard jewels regularly help A-listers like Julianne Moore, Lupita Nyong'o and Chloë Sevigny sparkle on the red carpet, but now, thanks to a new spa treatment, they can do the same for tired skin. The jewelry house, one of the official partners of the Cannes Film Festival, has teamed with the Hotel Martinez's L.Raphael spa on the Diamond Powder Mask, which combines Chopard's "diamond powder" and L.Raphael's anti-aging Cure-C nutraceuticals. L.Raphael founder and president Ronit Raphael calls the undertaking with Chopard's Caroline Scheufele "very special." Says Raphael, whose spa develops a luxe treatment each year to debut during the festival: "This marks the first time a luxury jewelry brand has collaborated with a luxury beauty brand." In the mask treatment, the L.Raphael offers a luxe mask made with Chopard "diamond powder" (price upon request) and green caviar skin care.

Moore

diamond powder acts as an exfoliator to remove dead skin cells, opening up the pores for penetration of the Cure-C formula, which helps to boost collagen, minimize fine lines and wrinkles, reduce pigmentation and brighten skin.

Also new on the spa's menu: a green caviar skin care collection. Known as "sea grapes," green caviar is a seaweed with beads growing on its stems that are high in healthy fats, collagen and antioxidants, and therefore good for skin and hair. L.Raphael has infused these little gems with oxygen to create products such as a rich cream and mask, and offers an Oxy Green Caviar Treatment. — CHRIS GARDNER